

As of January 12, 2016, 31 local governments, agencies, and nonprofit organizations in Florida have pending claims from FEMA requiring them to repay disaster relief funds awarded to them for approved projects. The following is a complete list of these entities and the amount of money FEMA is requesting they pay back, totaling nearly $35 million:

- Aventura: $26,000
- Boca Raton: $4.7 million
- Broward County: $2.7 million
- Community Action Program Committee, Inc.: $243,000
- Coral Springs: $2.8 million
- Cordova Community Facilities Corporation: $743,000
- Davie: $1.3 million
- Deerfield Beach: $2 million
- Department of Juvenile Justice: $871,000
- Department of Military Affairs: $1.1 million
- Desoto County: $1 million
- Duval County Public Schools: $3,500
- East Ridge Retirement Village, Inc.: $115,000
- Emerald Coast Housing II: $708,000
- Florida Department of Transportation: $597,000
- Florida Memorial College: $120,000
- Hialeah: $2.7 million
- Jupiter Christian School, Inc.: $90,000
- Lake Worth: $3.8 million
- The Opportunity Center, Inc.: $73,000
- Orlando: $732,000
- Palm Beach County: $3.2 million
- Palm Beach Gardens: $351,000
- Perdido Housing Corporation: $194,000
- Pompano Beach: $384,000
- Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Miami: $464,000
- St. Johns Water Control District: $157,000
- St. Thomas University: $872,000
- Sweetwater: $1.3 million
- The Partnership, Inc.: $982,000
- Vero Beach: $277,000
- Welaka: $50,500